A Year Paid by a Single Firm in Wheeling for Wool.

FARMERS BECOMING TOO TRICKY.

Some of Them Pack Skunk Skins and Other Things That are not Wool With Their Fleeces to Make Them Weigh Heavy-These Tricks Account for Reduced Prices.

The fact that Wheeling is the collecting point for large quantities of wool is no doubt familiar, but of the magnithe trade has attained probably table the trace has attained promuty few have a correct idea. In a talk yes-terday with Mr. Louis Hockheimer, of the firm of Horkheimer Bros., an Ix-TRACENCER reporter learned some lacts interest. "Few people," said Mr. Horkhelmer, few people," said Mr. Horkhelmer, mee a correct knowledge of the magnide of the wool trade conducted in is city. Our firm alone pays out a lillon dollars a year. We have already be year paid out $650,000 in cash. Of area all this money is not distributed hers farmers of West Virginia alone, or trade extends as far west as Columns, Olio, and east into Washington al Green County, Pa. The fine deline wols, raised in this State are of the green counties. Other counties in a State raise other qualities." ew people," said Mr. Horkheimer,

"How is wool usually bought-on

The farmers want spet each for wool, invariably, and one drawback to our business is the necessity of carrying large quantities of each out into the country. One of our firm is constantly on the road, during the busing senson, and we have agents standard and thought the country on the is constantly on the road, during the baying senson, and we have agents sta-tioned all through the country on the lokent. They buy and pay spot cash for the wool, and ship it to Wheeling. Usually it doesn't long remain with us, but is jutipled, as soon as sorted, to the senufactures."

Mr. Horkheimer showed the reporter over the building, where all sorts and grades of wool were piled. Some west were unwashed, some half washed, and others pretty thoroughly washed. "The wool dealers," said he, "are estating in favor of handling none but meashed wools. Every grower washes his wool in a different manner, and the result is that we are obliged to sort the essent into so many different grades. his wool in a different manner, and the result is that we are obliged to sort the product into so many different grades. Washed wools have a way of shrinking that is perfectly unnecountable, some shrinking as high as 50 per cent. An unwashed floece may not shrink more than 20 per cent. In handling the latter article a manufacturer knows just how much he is going to lose. He has the proper facilities for washing the fleece, and would prefer to handle them while they are "dirty." The few extra cents received by the grower for a washed fleece do not pay him for the time occupied in washing and the risk he runs in losing sheep by rough handling and the colds they are liable to contract from being driven through the water. And no matter how carelessly a sheep raiser lose his washing, he always wants as much per pound as the dealer pays his peighlor, who may have much cleaner ighbor, who may have much cleaner well, we bought some fleeces the ether day, and in some of them we heard skunk skins packed in. Others were full of 'tags.' Tags are the dirty portions of the wool around the legs of belly of the sheep, caked with ad. They ought by right to be inped off, but a great many wool towers seize every opportunity to slip towers seize every opportunity to slip to a lot of fleeces with the 'tags' not re-lated. Back here in this room are anareds of pounds of such clippings. That we don't throw away we sell for beat ten cents a pound, and every bit it has cost us about twenty-four ents.

"The morino sheep, with their grades, form the bulk of the sheep raised in this district. We have handled about body open of wool clipped from slesian and Saxony sheep, which are creeks comparatively new to this section. Mr. McDowell, of Washington to the wool grow-try association, and other gentlemen have flocks of these shep. They produce a beautiful wool, which is of the most grade and brings the highest trice."

"How does the present price of wool compare with that of former years?"

"During the past three years wool has rankinly become reduced in price, so that now it is about five cents per pound less than in former years. I believe, h, that the growers have only elves to blame. So many of them coming careless in their manner sting the wool, and tricky in putthe fleeces, that the dealers are compelled to have a margin to provide or loss in wool that is not what it is represented to be. Improve the meth-als and prices will advance."

HIS LAST DRINK.

A Young Man from Wellsburg Makes a Vow to Drink no More, But Almost Too Late-His Arm Gone.

There was a sad accident in the yard of the P., W. & Ky. Railroad near the depot last night about 10:30. Edward Smith, who came down from Wellsburg to attend the fair, had his left arm cut off between the elbow and shoulder by off between the elbow and shoulder by a train that was doing some switching. Smith is about twenty-four years old, and a nice looking young man with a blonde moustache. He had allowed himself to indulge too freely in the convivialities at the fair, and when he came byer to this side was considerably under the influence of liquor.

By some means, he got on to the railroad track and either hid down or fell before a train that was backing up through the yard. He was not seen by any of the trainmen till after the accident, when the patrol wagon was call-any of the trainment till after the accident, when the patrol wagon was called, and he was taken to the hospital in North Wheeling. Dr. C. M. Frissell was called, and dressed his injury. The wheels passed over the arm about two inches above the elbow, and it hung by a few sheds or flesh and skin.

Immediately after the accident, some one in the crowd that collected, proposed that he take a drink of whisky to stimulate his nerves. He declined saying "No, sir; I've taken the last whisky."

Dr. C. M. Frissell, assisted by Drs. E. A. Hildreth and Will Baird, amputated the arm at the shoulder, and left the patient resting comparatively easy and in good shape.

EMANCIPATION DAY.

Its Encouraging Prospects shown at a Meeting of the Lincoln Memorial Club Just Evening.

The Lincoln Memorial club had a very fully attended meeting last night. Rev. J. J. Jones opened the meeting and made a stirring address, dwelling on the importance of a big turnout, and urging that every colored man do all he could to make this demonstration a suc-could to make this demonstration a success.

The President, Dr. Clinton, being absent, Osborne Gray was called to the chair. G. W. Brunswick made an appropriate speech, and A. B. Rice was chosen secretary pro tem. He read a communication from the K. of P. lodge of Washington, Pa., and another from the same order at Zanesville, O., both signifying their intention to be here September 22 in large numbers.

The G. U. O. O. F. lodge of Wheeling, and also the uniformed patriarchy of that order, communicated, to the meeting their intention to turn out. A similar communication was also received from the American Federation of Bellaire, Martin's Ferry and Bridgeport.

KILLED ON THE TRACK.

An Unknown Man Deliberately Lets ar Engine Run Over Him.

Last night after midnight a man was run over by a B, & O. yard engine at Forty-eighth street. The telephone message sent to Coroner Phillips after 1 a. m. was that the man deliberately stood on the track and let the engine strike him. The engineer supposed, of course, he would get off the track, as he undoubtedly saw the engine. The coroner went down to examine the body.

The Cook Played Out.

Everybody has heard of the woman who cried when the sky rained gold because she had no apron to catch it in. Charles E. Van Keuren, the wellhim. Charles E. van Keiren, the wel-known hotel keeper, had worse luck. About eight o'clock yesterday evening his cook took sick, and at nine o'clock the dining room was closed up. There was plenty of food on hand, but no way to prepare it. Breakfast will be on hand this morning, however.

Mr. B. F. Poe, of Grafton, a clerk employed by Mr. H. Clay Love at that place, and who is now in the city atplace, and who is now in the city attending the fair, received a telegram from his employer saying that Mr. Clay's son Ralph, ten years old, had been killed, and asking him to come home at once. The telegram did not say how he was killed, but Mr. Poe supposed it was by a horse the boy has been riding this summer.

Enjoyable Birthday Party.

Wednesday night an enjoyable birth-day party was given at Schenck's hall to Miss Katie Fitzsimmons. Mr. Lawrence Mehen organized and managed it, and it reflected great credit on him. Nolte's orchestra furnished the music. Refreshments were served at a proper hour, and in every respect the occasion was pleasant to all so fortunate as to be numbered among the guests.

No room can be called complete unless furnished with one of complete unless furnished with one of their antique oak or cherry mantels. The assortment of slate and tile mantels and hearths is also very fine. The firm is the oldest in the State, and can be de-pended upon for doing all work up to the letter, in every promise they make. That this is the general opinion is proved by the fact that thousands of homes in this city and the surrounding territory have been fitted out with their goods. This firm is the only one in the city which possesses the knowledge of goods. This firm is the only one in the city which possesses the knowledge of how to set a mantel right, B. F.
